A Tribute Io West Virginia.

It is always a satisfaction to know that anything West Virginian is attracting the attention of the great world which lies beyond our borders. Our vast natural resources may escape the notice to which they are entitled—our coal may be permitted to lie entombed for ages permitted to lie entembed for ages to come, and our great trees of wondrous girth and towering height be found defying the storms at the crack of doom-but so long as our remarkable Supreme Court of Appeals is in being West Virginia cannot be entirely overlooked. The INTELLIGENCER has before given space to tributes to this monumental body. Here is one more of the same kind from the Central Law Journal, which knows a good thing when it sees it and displays marked ability in sifting wheat from chaff:

We wish we light the space to publish in full the learned and exhaustive opinion of Mr. Justice Green, of the Court of Appeals of West Virginia, in State 12. Baller, but as the opinion is sixteen pages long and relates to a single point in criminal law, we do not feel able to yield the space to it. We here take leave, parenthetically, to warn the West Publishing Company to go slow in establishing their Southeastern Reporter, which is to include the Surreme Cours of Appeals of West Virginia, It is a case where any publishing house might well act upon the maxim, "Look before you leap," The West Publishing Company is no doubt a strong concern, but we doubt if any company of private publishers is financially strong enough to stand the strain of publishing the opinions of a court whose opinions are as long as those of the West Virginia Cours.

ut we doubt if any utility strong at the equations of a court whose on intons are as long as those of the West Virginia Court.

We do not concur in the goodhumored sarcasm with which the Wheeling Intransposes handled that court recently, when it published our former remarks upon the length of Mr. Justice Green's opinions. We respect the court for its learning and the general soundness of its conclusions; but, query, is it necessary for a court to write an elaborate treatise on every perfectly well settled rule that svery ignorant backwoods lawyer may bring before it?

Here, for instance, is Danks vs. Rode-heaver, a case relating to a single point of practice. The single question was, whether a party who takes exceptions to rulings made during the progress of a trial, saves them for review on appeal, where he makes no motion for a new trial. The court held that he does not. The will be glad to know that hereafter they are to be issued quarterly under the title where he makes no motion for a new trial. The court held that he does not. The opinion which establishes this grave point is, together with the statement of the case, just twenty-live pages long. Decisions are reviewed at extravagant length from the courts of several other States. The West Virginia court had already decided the question twice; and, when the question was stirred a third time, it might have contented itself with saying that it adhered of its former rullngs,—those rulof "Shoppell's Modern Housed." The first is an admirable number, containing beautiful and convenient designs for large and small houses in city and country. The work is in practical hands and is inhave contented itself with saying that it adhered of its former rulings,—those rulings being founded on a principle of the most obvious propriety, namely, that the trial courts shall have the opportunity to review and correct their own errors by having those errors brought to their attention in motions for new trial, before the spepellate courts shall be troubled with them, and before the successful party shall be put to the delay and expense of contesting those questions of appeal. After such an elaborate consideration of the question, the opinion of the court, (written of the opinion of the court, (written of course by Mr. Justice Green) being twenty-three pages long, it is to be regretted that the court did not succeed in laying r-three pages long, it is to be regretted nat the court did not succeed in laying own for the guidance of the profession

We can forgive the Central Law Journal for its inability to concur at all times with the Intelligence, but so long as it sings the stir with its editor's strong exposition of praises of our Supreme Court of Appeals the partisan abridgement of the elective it may count on a friend at this court. This is, perhaps, an opportune time to correct a misapprehension under which our cotemporary seems to be resting.

Judge Okey Johnson, the President Judge of our Supreme Court, has not yet left the bench for a consular or diplomatic misser reading for a consular or diplomatic misser reading for the Secretary of State. Andrew Carnegie's paper "Democracy in England" has excited comment and will provoke more. William Waldorf Astor does over Lucretia Borgia and makes her less hideous than the Lucretia Borgia that has been held up to us. fact he has not yet been appointed to such mission, the President being loth to deprive West Virginia of services so valuable.

The Basic Process for Southern Ores. Mr. Jacob Rees, of Pittsburgh, has gone South to visit Birmingham and Wheeling, Alabama, in the belief that he can demonstrate that by the Basic process the iron ores of that region can be dephosphorized and made serviceable for all uses. If Mr. Rees succeeds, as he confidently expects to he predicts that iron can be made in Ala bama at $12 a ton, steel at $17, steel nails at $21 and placed on board vessels at a cost not exceeding $25, plate material at 2 cents a pound, cost of production in Pittsburgh, 5 cents. English capitalists, says Mr. Rees, are ready to take hold in the South if its ores can be worked with the results which he anticipates.

In order that our town shall have the best goods possible, the popular druggists Logan & Co., and Charles Menkemelier have arranged to sell Acker's English Prescriptions, among which is Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. They act upon the system when suffering with Dyspepsia, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, Flatulency, Hearburn, &c., &c., with a wonderful certainty, hence they guarantee them to cure always, or will refund the money. If the Southern ores can be converted into iron and steel of approved quality at the figures given by Mr. Rees, the North must find a greater compensating advant-A negro girl living near Camilla, Ga., answers to the name of Mamie Baker, Queen Victoria, Southern Belle, Atlantic Beauty. age than the difference in cost of transportation. What the expedient, if any, is to be, is for practical men to determine. Northern manufacturers are looking with Beauty.

An Enterprising, Heliable Hoose.

Logan & Co. can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bettle Free.

MWFAW increasing apprehension to the possibilty of a competition from the South that may change the whole face of the iron industry.

Some of the South's present advantage may be overcome by an increase of wages in that section. Organized labor is getting a hold there, as yet not great, but the better paid labor of the North is certain to do its own share towards its own protection against the constant menace of lower wages in the far South. Whatever may be the outcome, the successful introduction of the Basic process in Alabama can-tion of the Basic process in Alabama cannot be regarded without apprehension by iron men of the North, some of whom have already endeavored to insure themselves by investing in Southern iron lands.

New Pablications.

Mr. Robert P. Porter's letters from abroad on industrial topics heve added greatly to his well-deserved fame as a writer on questions of public economy, lathese articles Mr. Porter has compared industrial conditions in European countries with those in the United States, from the comparison deducing a triumphant vindication of the policy of protection to American industries. There has been a great demand for these letters in book form, and this demand is now in part satisfied by the publication of one hundred of the letters from England. The range of his writings is very wide, including almost every branch of English manufacture, its present condition, wages paid, and such other data as may be required for an intelligent comparison. The work is of so great a value, given at so small a price (one dollar in cloth) that we dislike to point out what seems to us a singular omission. There is no index, which in such a work is of peculiar importance. This defect Mr. Porter may easily remedy in another edition. The book is published under the stractive title of "Bread-Winners Abroad," and is well worth the study of every American bread-winner. A similar book of Mr. Porter's letters from the continent of Europe is in contemplation.—J. S. Ogilvic & Co., New York.
